A HISTORY OF SCRIBES FOOTBALL CLUB

1958 - 1983

FOREWORD

The awesome responsibility for providing an interesting preface to this 25th anniversary publication was beginning to weigh heavily when, in the space of a week, two letters from ex-Scribes members arrived through the post. They were sent in response to the appeal placed in the MOD Sports Bulletin.

In their letters the correspondents - Bill McMahon and Gwilym Ballinger - have between them managed to cover (in terms of memorabilia) the early, middle and recent periods in the colourful history of SCRIBES FOOTBALL CLUB. For that reason, both letters are reproduced below in only slightly abridged form.

Bill McMahon's tour of Germany as a MOD civil servant coincided with - perhaps the term should be 'signalled' - the formation of SCRIBES F.C.. In his revealing letter he expands on the club's origins, the early pioneers and characters.

I have been told that you are compiling the history of SCRIBES F.C.. You might therefore be interested to learn of how the club started.

I remember it quite clearly. I was in the Command Secretariat at the time and lived at 2 Derby Walk in Rheindahlen. A few doors from me lived a PE teacher from Queen's School by the name of Ian Walker, who had played for the Scottish club, Queen's Park, as an amateur internationalist. Since we were both football fanatics you can imagine what subject dominated our conversations.

At a New Year's Eve dance, Ian said that he would like to form a football team from the teachers within Rheindahlen. My reply was that I could raise a team from Com Sec which could lick his team. In my case it was more my national beverage talking rather than myself and later I hoped that Ian might forget the whole matter. However, he kept on at me to arrange a match and I decided to have a go with some trepidation, since Ian was in his early twenties, I was in my early forties; and I had no idea how many people in our office played football.

On going round the sections, I discovered a number of football age who could play, some others who had played in the past and some other fit types who were not really football players, but were prepared to do the running for the older ones.

A game was arranged for a Sunday afternoon, kit was borrowed; we stripped in the Queen's School and played on a pitch across the road. I can remember quite vividly some of the players who took part. There was Tommy Thomas, then aged 47, who played as a half back for the Army and Aldershot. He was remarkably fit and could take on players half his age at squash. His play was a delight to watch. Then there was Harry Taylor who had been on the books of Derby as a youth and had then played non-league football with Long Eaton. In his late thirties he still had speed, a cracking shot - and played on the left wing.

Among the younger players there was John Skillicorn, who was a talented player with deft skills and delicate touches. A real bonus was a centre forward who was doing his National Service; he was the only player who was not a civilian, but since he worked in our Post Room I considered him eligible. I believe he was on the books of one of the Lancashire clubs - Bury I think - and by the standard of his play this could well have been so.

Other players I recall include a young Arthur Boot and our six foot plus goalkeeper from Northern Ireland, Jack Carmichael, who was my age. I regret I cannot remember the others, but then I did not expect to be called upon to do so twenty five years later!

We played well and won by nine goals to one. Next day, despite stiff limbs and minor injuries, there was much enthusiasm for another game and one was arranged with the CEPO staff. Jack Carmichael and I dropped out with Jack appointing himself linesman for the game and thoroughly enjoying the banter with the spectators (we had quite a number of these with the members of the staff plus families turning out). The result was another win for our team by six goals to one.

Following that, a game was arranged with a RAF team which provided stiffer opposition. I am unable to recall the exact score but again we won.

By this time the team was broadening into an integrated civilian side including players from Com Sec, CEPO and other offices within HQ. I was on travelling audit, being away from home every second week, and opted out of administration but turned up Sundays to give support until I came back to UK early in 1959. I do not recollect the team having a regular name - The Wanderers was an early suggestion but I heard later that SCRIBES was finally chosen and from time to time I heard from staff returning from BAOR about their progress.

I have now been retired for some years but my daughter, who is in MOD at COD Donnington, saw your appeal in a MOD Recreational Newsletter - hence my letter.

I hope you receive sufficient contributions to enable a chronicle to be produced as I'm sure it would make interesting reading and bring back many memories.

With best wishes to you and all 'Scribes' - Yours etc

BILL McMAHON

Gwilym Ballinger 'suffered' two tours - spanning two decades and totalling seven years. During those years he played alongside many of the club's 400+ (recorded) players. His letter takes a lighthearted look at the personalities and talents of his era. Gwilym modestly refrains from mentioning that he, himself, earned a place in the club's Hall of Fame as a prolific goalscorer with a fearsome shot. In his final two years he also undertook, in typically active fashion, the duties of chairman. He is, therefore, well qualified to contribute.

This article may well turn out to be an excellent way to lose many friends. It is not meant to be a comparison between players but a pleasant way for me to remember the many fine footballers with whom I played, and the friends I made, during my two tours of Germany in 1968 - 71 and 1975 - 79. It may be best described as a discussion document: That discussion to take place only over a pint of 'H' or 'Sludge' in No 1 or No 3 Mess.....do they still exist?

SCRIBES is not just a football club, it is THE football club - a way of life. Everyone who plays for SCRIBES, from my experience, becomes a member for life. It is now four years since I last left Germany, but SCRIBES is still my club: I still maintain contact with many SCRIBES friends.

It is stimulating to talk over old times: Peter Kilburn's two goals which won the North Rhine Cup for the first time; Cary Hall's brilliant save in the semi-final of that year (1976/77) which helped to knock out those 'friendly boys' from 28 Signal Regiment. These are only two of the fondest memories.....quite apart from FSA, discounted new cars, cheap holidays and - best of all - cheap booze!

Returning to football and the talents of the players of the different eras in which I played: Who would choose between the 68-71 'keeper, John Legry, and Colin Case of the most successful SCRIBES side (in terms of trophies) ever? If John had not been such a dedicated civil servant he would undoubtedly have played professionally. Colin Case was also a very fine goalkeeper, having to fight off the challenge of John 'Mervyn Day' Perrott and the then up-and-coming Cary Hall to maintain his first team place. All four represented an excellent last line of defence.

The full backs I remember from my first tour were Mike North, Jerry O'Reilly and one other young lad establishing himself at that time: Mike McGarry. He was still around ten years later having set up a never-to-be-beaten record of appearances for SCRIBES. It is difficult to choose between these and the 1975-79 version of full backs, which included: Pat Cassidy, Ian Wither, Dick Lacey, Keith Williams and, of course, Mike now joined by younger brother Laurence.

At the centre of defence Bill Long reigned supreme during 1968-71 and also during the earlier part of my second tour when he eventually made way for that awesome 'stopper' Tony Oakes. Many a 'squaddie' and 'blue job' suffered sleepless nights before and after playing against these two. When it comes to considering those who played alongside the centre half my thoughts immediately turn to two of the finest players with whom I have had the privilege to play: Jim McNee and Keith Richardson. Keith was often called upon to play in midfield since, on my 68-71 tour, there were also the versatile Terry Smith, Barry Angove (the non-married variety!) and Terry Baker available to dominate this area of the game.

On my second tour the midfield maestros were Peter Stainsby, Graham Sides, Mark Hinson and Alex Burr - he could bite legs harder than Norman Hunter! Dave Gibbs also played midfield, but then he played everywhere; did he play in all eleven positions?

Up front: Abundant talent! BAOR and RAFG selectors must have been crying in their pints to see the class players the 'bloody civvies' managed to produce over the years.

Terry McGuckian - the RAF tried to make him an honorary Wing Commander - was, in my book, the finest player ever to pull on a SCRIBES jersey; Graham Wilkinson was a prolific maker and taker of goals; also around in 1975-79 were Geoff Brennan and Peter Kilburn, who both knew where the back of the net was and were match winners in their own right. Then I think back - although I'd rather not! - fifteen years to the likes of Keith Hopkins, an outstanding winger, Mike Arlow, Paul Williams and last, but not least, a young Tony Downing. Tony was another who provided goals for others in addition to notching one or two himself; unfortunately he also supports Everton!

What other names can I conjure up? Fred Donnelly (has he stopped producing children yet?), Jim Wallace (same comment applies), Dave Crabbe, Tony Hickling..... there are many others whom I have forgotten to mention; no offence intended, it is just that memory dims with age!

I previously mentioned that SCRIBES is a way of life; by comparison, all other clubs one plays for pale into insignificance. With SCRIBES your nationality did not matter (except on international days when your team lost!). Even Welshman like myself were accepted into the fold. The memories of the annual dinner/dances linger on..... the work of people like Ron Hinson, Mike Humphreys, Keith Connor and many others will never be forgotten..... the SCRIBES ladies, too, were a very talented lot - and you can work that out for yourself! - who will forget their vociferous support on the touchline; their patience on match days and training nights (I can now reveal it was Dave Gibbs who kept us out until past midnight); and, of course, their sympathetic understanding of the Pat Cassidy ruling about no Friday night exercise before the Saturday match.

My first indiscretion was to write this article. Having forgotten to mention the names of many talented players and supporters, I then intended to commit the ultimate indiscretion and name the team I would select if all the players were at their peak together, but having had second thoughts, I shall refrain....after all - what does a Welshman know about soccer anyway?!

GWILYM BALLINGER

As an individual with a fascination for statistics and SCRIBES F.C., the compilation of these records has been a labour of love. This summary of 25 years football does not purport to be totally accurate; indeed, the records for the first decade can only be described as vague. Nevertheless it has been an honest attempt to build a base on which the events of the next 25 years can rest.

Older members may be particularly interested in the alphabetical list of players who have represented the club since 1953 - Gwilym, please note your omissions! It would be spurious to claim that the list is complete and apologies are therefore proffered to those whose names are missing.

Any current or ex-member who is in a position to provide missing facts and figures, or who spots obvious errors, is kindly requested to contact the club secretary at the following address:-

Mr D Higgins
c/o Civil Secretariat (CS 1)
JHO
BFPO 40

Only matches of a competitive nature have been included in the players' statistics.

Finally, my personal thanks are extended to: All those who contributed to the appeal for information; MODRA for including the appeal in their Newsletter; the current and previous SCRIBES committees for their assistance, all those who took the trouble to collate annual statistics for posterity; my wife, who patiently endured many hours of non-communication; and to you, dear reader, for purchasing - or merely borrowing - this 'worst seller'.

The Winter's Tale

Have you heard the one about the ex-Scribe (currently a Grade Manager in CM(A)2!) who, fearful for his precariously held place in the 2nd XI, cut short, to the obvious disgust of the main participants, his Best Man's speech following a rather snooty military/civilian wedding at St. Andrew's Church, and dashed off, still in topper and tails, to an away fixture with 438 MCLG.

The result? A 1-8 defeat for Scribes, the loss of the offender's 2nd XI place (and Saturday football) for the rest of the season, and a 7 year break (to date) in communications between Bridegroom and "Best" Man!
